I love coloring. I always have. And since this adult coloring craze has came about I've jumped right on board! I've seen and heard about the swear word coloring books but just had never gotten one. This was my first. I had heard long ago that coloring was therapeutic and I've always believed that. When I'm having a stressful day, I like nothing better than to sit back with my gel pens or colored pencils and just color! The coloring of swear words just actually adds to the relaxation. And it makes me smile.. Others may not approve (and if they have something to say, I'll refer them to read this coloring book) but the day I received this, my beautiful tween daughter came home from school sobbing. She had been bullied and made fun of by some mean kids. After calling school, I sat down with her to calm her down. I handed her the book and told her to read the pages out loud.. I normally do it allow my children to curse, however, this day it was the best thing for her. Within minutes my sobbing daughter was filled with laughter as she recited...."Let that %$#& go! Don't be a prick. We sat there and colored and laughed and everything was better for just a little while!!!So back to the actual coloring book. The illustrations are funny and punny lol. There are some clever ones that made me chuckle. For instance, "son of a b word....complete with pictures of puppies. Or the prick one...with a cactus! The actual drWingz are good. I myself prefer a more detailed design to color it that's just a personal preference. There are 30 illustrations to color. The paper is medium weight. I had very slight bleed through. I always put a piece of cardboard between my coloring pages.
