I own all of Jason Hamilton's coloring books and I was happy to pick this one up as well. It is quite different from the others both in subject matter as well as being full body designs. There are 24 standard size designs and as a bonus, Mr. Hamilton includes 14 4 x 6 inch copies of some of the designs as well as 5 full size designs that are zoomed in to highlight certain elements of the original designs. The smaller size are printed two to a page and the design on both small and the zoomed in pages are also featured in the original 24 pages. Mr. Hamilton has a distinctive style fairy, with beautiful faces, long pointed ears and lush figures. He places his fairies in scenes which provides me with a fun coloring experience. While I haven't colored it as yet, I absolutely love the fairy being threatened by the bumblebee. It reminds me of the old movie posters of the fair heroine being threatened by whoever or whatever was the villain of the week. I have been using a mix of alcohol-based markers, colored pencils, and a touch of gel pens in coloring these designs. The designs are detailed with backgrounds. Some parts are somewhat intricate and include smaller details that I used my Verithins to color. This has been my experience while coloring in this book and testing the paper with my coloring medium: 24 full size fairy designs, 14 4 x 6 inch designs, and 5 zoomed in designs for a total of 43 coloring designs (note some are duplicates of other sizes, etc.
