Doorways: A Greyscale Coloring Book

Synopsis

This book was inspired after a recent visit to Fallingwater, Frank Lloyd Wright's masterpiece. I was surprised by the placement of the front door to the house. It was very small and in a place that would have been hard to find if it were not for the tour guide. I began looking for interesting doors for a greyscale coloring book and the result is this collection of 60 images featuring doorways that are architecturally unique. Each image has been hand-processed using high-end computers, state-of-the-art software and our proprietary processing techniques to bring you sharp, vivid images that jump off the page unlike ordinary gray scale images that have been automatically lightened with graphics software. Each image is also printed on its own page too so you can remove them for framing or gifts.

Customer Reviews

I was very excited to see this book. My last and first grayscale book was a huge disappointment due to paper and ink quality. There was only one four or so word review on this book but it really intrigued me. The book has about 50 (I'm guessing) or so beautiful pages of different doorways in grayscale. When I tried to color a page with a blue prismacolor pencil it was very heart broken to see the shorty results. While this book would make an excellent coffee table book it does not make such a great coloring book for several reasons. All of the doors and doorways are of wood and stone and other than one or two occasional colors everything needing to be colored is brown and gray. This being a grayscale book leaves it to be half colored then. On another note you can't use prismacolor pencils on this book because of the rough and bumpy texture. If you do decide to use prismacolor use a dark color because you'll need to use a blender pencil after that color and the ink darkens and rubs and smears into your color. I have left pics below. The picture with the blue door is one side prismacolor and the other side is prismacolor and the blender pencil. I did try one other picture with a prismacolor and that would be the red one and yes I had to use the blender there also. All of the rest of the colored pictures shown are done with several different brands of oil based pencils with much harder leads and slightly increased hand pressure. The rest are uncolored for you to see some of the inside book pages. You can try and use your imagination as to what color you would color those pages. They really should have just marketed this one as a coffee table book. The photos in it are beautiful and isn't an overly "been done" subject.

I really like doorways, so this works for me. Weel done.
